Brief description of Schools:

i. School of Competition Law & Market Regulations

Enhancing capacity in the understanding of Competition Law & Policy is the aim of the School of Competition Law & Market Regulations. Various interactive events such as workshops, seminars, roundtables on specific themes relating to competition are conducted in addition to the regular teaching and training course to enable participatory learning. Induction Training and advanced Professional Programmes for officers of the Competition Commission of India are the main programmes of the School. The course focuses on providing support in the understanding and evaluation of existing and proposed regulations. This enables a stronger Competition Impact Assessment in various economic sectors in the context of the proposed National Competition Policy through the expertise provided by the School.

ii. School of Corporate Law

The School undertakes instructions in a manner designed to encourage and facilitate the development of an enabling framework for company managers and professionals to discharge their regulatory compliance responsibilities. The course includes in depth study of all legal provisions and acts that directly or indirectly impact the form and function of corporate entities. Study of Corporate Law and Company Regulation a ; Limited Liability Partnership Law; the regulation and function of professional bodies through the Chartered Accountants Act, the Cost and Works Accountant Act and the Company Secretaries Act; understanding the scope and limitations of the Partnerships Act and Societies Registration Act, are all aimed at creating an environment of enlightened legal ease.

iii. School of Finance

The School of Finance is focused on the study, research and capacity building with regard to financial and regulatory issues. Short programmes and training workshops on regulation of corporate financial disclosures, accounting and auditing are conducted as a part of the capacity building initiative. The School also provides financial reporting & regulation modules for the teaching and training programmes of other Schools of IICA.

iv. School of Business Environment

Understanding the business environment implies the inclusive study of economic trends, financing options, developments in technology, legal and business environments. The School focuses on the study and analysis of emerging business environments, trends and future scenarios so as to facilitate the drawing up of policy frameworks and administrative systems and to enable debate on appropriate strategies and structures that promote creativity and entrepreneurship in business. Development of new technologies has always been at the heart of economic growth and business development. The School constantly scans developments in emerging technologies and uses the information as input for the various training programmes of IICA.

Business sustainability in environmental terms has become the centre point of business strategy and vast resources are being earmarked for ensuring energy security and availability for sustained development and economic growth. The School monitors all such initiatives in order to explore possibilities of business development in areas of energy sustainability. The School of Business Environment aims to facilitate basic understanding of the issues involved so as to be able to render appropriate strategic and policy advice to the Government and the corporate sector.

v. School of Corporate Governance & Public Policy

Management expertise deals with the organization, raising & management of capital, understanding of operating procedures and production resources and their combined utilisation for productive economic purposes through responsible corporate governance. The School of Corporate Governance & Public Policy aims to provide the knowledge and expertise to meet the challenges of inclusive and sustainable corporate operation and growth. With the focus shifting from regulation to delivery, the school aims to create capacity to render advice on systemic reforms on one end as well as improve service delivery at the other end. This includes the study of the management of regulatory and administrative systems of the Ministry and its field officers on an on-going basis with a view to continuously improving these systems. The School of Corporate Governance & Public Policy strives to contribute towards a better understanding of corporate management issues and to consolidate the position of IICA as a high quality institute and think tank.
